

Solid performance

Travelling up to one million kilometres in three years can take its toll on many heavy vehicles in the transport industry but AV Truck's Western Star vehicles are carving a reputation for heavy-duty reliability.

Cockburn Transport owner and operator Dragan Jevtic says he is impressed by the two Western Star road trains he purchased from AV Trucks two months ago.

"Some of our vehicles do 300 to 400 thousand kilometres a year so reliability and durability is key to our success... Our drivers are already saying they are really happy with the new vehicles," Dragan says.

Dragan says he was willing to try the Western Star vehicles because of the spacious cab area, comfortable drive, and solid performance.

Cockburn Transport provides a comprehensive transport service that includes a fortnightly service between Perth and Queensland.

"We bought the Western Stars for that specific Queensland run...we knew we had to have vehicles that would be reliable and economical and easy to maintain," he said.

As a family-owned and operated business located in Bibra Lake in Western Australia, Cockburn Transport has been in operation since 1985. The company takes great pride in offering a high level of road transport within Western Australia as well as covering most areas in NSW, Queensland and Victoria.

Cockburn Transport also manages requirements of many major industries, including mining equipment, agricultural supplies and equipment transport, as well as earthmoving machinery.

With the company's ability to transport a large range of freight nationally and offer a flexible service to its customers, Dragan says he plans to purchase additional Western Star vehicles to cater for further demands: "I will be revisiting our position in another three years and if the vehicles are performing as well as they are now then I will have no hesitation to buying more."
